Robin was indeed a kind-hearted and joyful person. Even within her hectic work days, Robin would take time to connect ” conversing on art, poetry, travel, and family. In extending my sympathies to those Robin loved best, please know that she was an engaging, supportive and dynamic presence in our office. I always enjoyed our conversations and will miss her friendly outreach and open heart.

" My Beautiful Friend, Robin As I sit down to write these words, my heart weighs heavy with the profound sadness of bidding you farewell. The news of your passing has left a void in my soul. You were not just a friend but a radiant beam of light. Your beauty, both inside and out, was a testament to the depth of your spirit. Your kindness knew no bounds. You were the epitome of genuine, your authenticity a rare treasure in this world. Your thoughtfulness and caring nature touched the lives of everyone fortunate enough to cross your path. I remember being in awe of you when I first met you! Your battle with cancer was a testament to your strength and resilience, yet it breaks my heart knowing that despite your courage, this cruel illness stole you from us far too soon. I find myself grappling with the unfairness of it all, and I wish I had one more chance to tell you how much you meant to me. And though I may shed tears today, I take comfort in knowing that you are finally free from pain, watching over us with your beautiful smile, and each memory is a precious gift that I will hold dear for the rest of my days. Though my heart aches with sadness, I find peace in the knowledge that your memory will live on in the hearts of all who knew and loved you." Love you, your friend Janet R and John

Robin was a regular walker along the beach. Sometimes she would stop with Rob and we would have a chat. She was always smiling. We are so sorry to hear of her passing. Rod and Muriel McVeigh, neighbours
