I extend my condolences to the Morrison Family and Friends. I met John at the start of my career at Honeywell Information Systems way back in 1981. They say first impressions are lasting impressions. John stood out as a most memorable and funny personality amidst a sea of serious, sometimes dry, computer technology talents. He earned my lasting respect on our first introduction. John stood out and was a refreshing personality. I am sure he will be missed by all who had the pleasure of calling him their friend.
